Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 04 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mix of clear spells and scattered showers.

This Evening and Tonight:
Today's rain will clear eastwards through the evening. Afterwards it looks mostly cloudy but with some clear spells. Chance of showers returning into the west of the region towards to morning. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Friday:
A band of showers, occasionally heavy, from the west will head slowly east across the region on Friday, clearing by the evening. Brighter conditions following behind with showers becoming isolated. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Sunshine and scattered showers Saturday. Mostly dry Sunday but some sleet or snow possible briefly in the east. Drier Monday but breezy and very cold. Ice possible all days.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.